9. Historical significance (include explanation of themes checked above)

This house, ~~built by local carpenter Abram C. Washburn~~, is a typical Vernacular cross-gable design with bay window and porch with turned posts.

This building remains in the family of the man who lived here in the 1880s. William Fish Glenn was born in ~~Ireland~~ in 1851. He became a resident of Lexington in 1871 and was a carpenter by trade, although the 1894 Directory indicates he also worked as a clerk. His grandson, who occupied the house in the twentieth century, was a meat dealer and the small building at the rear, now part of the residence, was originally a slaughterhouse.

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE:

A brief mention in the Lexington Minute-man on August 17, 1888 noted that "Mr. William F. Glenn is building himself a house on Forest Street". William Fish Glenn was born in Nova Scotia in 1851 and came to Lexington in 1871. He was a carpenter and a Free Mason. Glenn died between 1918 and 1922 but his widow Clara continued to occupy the house into the 1930s.

The house remained in the Glenn family until 1993.
